

Public Services Building to be Built in Wasatch County

25 Oct 1984

HEBER CITY—Bids were finalized on Tuesday and work began Wednesday on the construction of a new City/County Public Services building.

Wasatch City/County Health Director Phil Wright said that he was excited to get a new building for his offices which will, in the end, be helpful to the residents of Wasatch County.

The new public services building will be constructed on 1st South and approximately 700 West, just outside the city limits. It will be located at the front of the property used by the County Public Works Sheds.

It will have a total footage of 4,800 sq. ft, with space for 10 offices, 3 conference rooms and various other features.

The building will be occupied by the County Public Works Director, the City/County Health Department, and the Alcohol and Drug Abuse Center.

The building is designed to hold the Health Nurses Office and has a conference room specially designed for lectures presented by her. There is also a kitchen facility for the nutritionist that visits the county.

The building was designed to have separate entrances for the Public Works Department and the Public Health Department. This would give the two departments chances to use the conference rooms after regular working hours.

Bids were taken for the building, and apparent low bidders were: Davis Bros. Construction for the Public Service Building; Paul Milliner Construction received the bid for the shop addition.

The construction of the new shop addition comes because the new Public Service building is being built on the site of one of the older shop buildings. The new shop addition will be on the existing building at the back of the compound. There will be three new shop doors installed, and the removal of the gas pumps to the back of the compound.

The grant that the county received was an economic development grant, of which the grant will cover 80 percent of the cost, and the county will pay for 20 percent. The grant was awarded because the county is high in unemployment.

Commissioner Pete Coleman explained that the county had a hard time obtaining the grant in the first place. The county had applied for the grant at the same time that Provo had applied, but the grant for Wasatch County was turned down.

Coleman stated that it was only after the County Commission made phone calls to the EDA (Economic Development Agency) that the Agency even knew that the county had been refused over Provo City.

Coleman stated that the building had been underpriced, and the EDA felt that there would have to be more. The County said that it would be willing to participate in the project more, and the people at EDA said that it would be processed in a matter of days.

The grant didn't get processed and the commission was furious. Coleman stated that after being neglected the commission went to the area representative, Congressman Howard Neilson and Senator Jake Garn. Things started to happen and the grant was finally approved.

"It'll be a great value for Wasatch," stated Commissioner Coleman. He stated that the savings on rent will be among the biggest values, and the more space for the growing county offices.

Halloween Safety Tips

The Utah Department of Health and the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission are giving the following Halloween safety tips for parents and guardians of children who plan to go trick-or-treating this Halloween:

- *Warn children not to eat any of their treats before they get home. Examine all treats carefully before allowing children to eat them.

- *Look for costumes, masks, beards, and wigs labeled "Flame Resistant." Although these items could still catch fire, such labeling indicates that they will resist burning and should extinguish quickly once removed from the ignition source. Flimsy materials and outfits with big, baggy sleeves or billowing skirts should be avoided to minimize the risk of contact with candles or other flames.

- *Costumes should be short enough to prevent children from tripping and falling. Children should wear well-fitting, sturdy shoes.

- *Hats and scarfs should be tied securely to prevent them from slipping over children's eyes.

- *Apply a natural mask of cosmetics rather than have a child wear a loose fitting mask which might restrict breathing or obscure vision. If a mask is used, however, make sure it fits securely and has eyeholes large enough to allow full vision.

- *Swords, knives and similar costume accessories should be of soft or flexible material.

- *Smaller children should always be accompanied by an older responsible child or an adult. All children should use the sidewalk rather than walk in the street, and they should walk not run from house to house. Children should be cautioned against running out from between parked cars, or across lawns and yards where ornaments, furniture, or clotheslines present dangers.

- *Children should only go to homes where residents have outside lights on as a sign of welcome. Children should not enter homes or apartments unless they are accompanied by an adult.

- *Those receiving trick-or-treats should remove anything that could be an obstacle from steps, lawns, and porches. Candlelit jack-o'-lanterns should be kept away from landing and doorsteps where costumes could brush against the flame. Indoor jack-o'-lanterns should be kept away from curtains, decorations, or other furnishings that could be ignited.

Valley Regional Medical Center, but is improving.

According to Utah Highway report, Mrs. Witt was headed to Provo, Oct. 18, when her car apparently slid on a snow covered patch of road, 1 mile south of Hoovers, crashing into a pick-up truck driven by Richard A. Oakley, 52, of Payson.

Mrs. Witt was given first aid treatment by two Heber youth, Doug and Launa Murdock, who and began treating the injured woman. After assessing the situation, the Lifelight helicopter was radioed to transport Mrs. Witt to the Utah Valley Hospital where she received treatment for numerous broken bones.

Officer Richard Henning with the investigating officer said that Oakley was treated and released with minor injuries. No citation was issued, pending further investigation.
